

ABSTRACT

Elongated string trimmer line is configured with a cross section throughout its length having a thickness which is less than the width thereof, and which includes top and bottom surfaces at least a portion of which are located in parallel planes. The line may be made by passing a blank of high molecular weight orientable plastic through opposing calendering rollers, which impart bi-axial orientation to the molecular structure of the finished line.

BEST AVAILABLE COPY